

Kathleen Lukin
Director

Ms. Kathleen Lukin has over 10 years of experience helping leaders gain strategic clarity, build high performing teams, and create effective learning and leadership development opportunities. Ms. Lukin serves as a director in the strategy and management portfolio where she utilizes her organizational development expertise to meet clients at the intersection of people, process, and system. She leads clients to breakthrough thinking and performance through the custom design of strategic and collaborative working sessions, meaningful learning/training opportunities, and leader coaching.

Prior to joining Deep Water Point & Associates, Ms. Lukin was a director at Wolf Den Associates. She has previously served in chief of staff, learning and organization development, and executive administrative partner roles in multiple industries and across public, private, non-profit, and family owned organizations. Her varied experiences working with intact teams, front line leaders, and executives have provided her with a well-rounded view of both the unique and universal issues and opportunities experienced at the individual, team, and organization level as each works to excel and grow.

Ms. Lukin has a BA in French, education and ethnic studies from Lawrence University. She also holds an MS in organization development (MSOD) from Pepperdine University.
